

GRASSROOTS

BASKETBALL INITIATIVE

Eastbay Inc. in conjunction with adidas Basketball came to us to create, strategize and manage an immersive experience at 3 elite high school basketball tournaments in Atlanta, Houston, and Brooklyn. We designed the on-site event experience and managed strategy for the three events across EXP, PR and Digital channels. By allowing us to create strategy and manage across these channels, we were able to drive extraordinary engagement, conversion, and impression metrics for all three events.

Note: Metrics below include numbers and data from Atlanta and Houston only. Final Brooklyn numbers are still pending but are expected to exceed those of the first two events.

LIVE CONTENT

IG stories, branded and geo-fenced Snap Chat filters, and Organic Social channel content performance during events.

EMAIL – INFLUENCER DRIVEN CONTENT

Each event had a targeted Email Campaign that leveraged Social Media Influencers brought to each event and content gathered of those influencers interacting with high school basketball players against the vast email database of Eastbay’s customer list. This combination of a new product release paired with video content from an influencer that many of the recipients likely identified with, yielded exceptionally high conversion for each campaign.

EVENT CONCLUSION/KEY FINDINGS

Eastbay came to us to create a unique event to connect with their consumer: elite high school basketball athletes. We designed an experience to speak to them on the court in ways that they understood. But they asked us to take that a step further with consideration that they are an online-sales focused brand, so everything needed to be highly leverageable across digital marketing channels. Despite only a few thousand athletes and attendees at each event, our physical activation touch points were able to generate millions of impressions, nearly 100k engagements, over a million in trackable sales, and a 2.2 to 1 ROI on the project as a whole.
